Hello. The advertising you have just clicked is a fictitious advertising presented to you for research purposes. The research is being conducted by the University of Florida. Specifically, this research is being conducted by the Marketing Department. The Harry&Rowe department store is not an existing company.

Rest assured that none of your personal data have been collected. The only information we have is the aggregated number of people who clicked or not the ad.